

FREEDOM, FILIAL FEALTY

The inner being cries out for freedom from constricting subjugation at home, at school, in the church from pervasive inhibitions.

The minds of our people must not be subjected to deviant variations.

Our people must be taught to think for themselves and bear responsibility.

For their actions, they must be led to vouch for their accountability.

However, their freedom must not trespass the rights of others.

Their training should begin in childhood, continue throughout adolescence,

Meander through adulthood until they voyage on once again.

Freedom, filial fealty coated in relationships, encompassing all civilization

Personally, within a family, communally and albeit nationally.

It must be attested freedom, not violating any basic human principle or agreement.

For the price of freedom, we must be prepared to make sacrifices personally or otherwise.

Once we have gained our freedom, we must be prepared to maintain the status quo.

Then the rigmarole begins again through clinical deviations or meanderingly

To maintain freedom, we must regularize our fealty, instead of stops and starts.

In accordance with its principles, freedom is bought at a price, a cyclical price.

There are many forms of freedom but only one aim- emancipation.

You can pressurize it, try to suppress it but no one can live without freedom.

What is the meaning of freedom? It's the act of enjoying your rights without violating others.

Now that we know the whole story, where do we go from here? Forward!
